Fierce Fighting In Residential Suburb of Naha

American Casualties from Booby Traps Believed Heavy

By AL DOPKING

GUAM, Monday, May 14 (AP)—American marines, fighting amid intense artillery and mortar fire, inched through the northern approaches to Naha yesterday. One frontline radio correspondent reported today the leathernecks already were battling inside the bomb-battered Okinawa capital. Blue network reporter Norman Price broadcast that he watched a "steady line of marines, wounded and dead, being carried out of Naha. The Japs have left booby traps and land mines in generous proportions everywhere in the town. Most of our casualties are from those."

Infantry Takes Hill

Associated Press Correspondent Vern Haugland reported in a delayed dispatch dated Sunday that United States infantrymen and tanks gained a hill in the residential suburb of Naha, just north of the Asato river. This was at Takamotoji village, where the Japanese were battling fanatically to keep the Yanks from crossing the last war barrier before Naha.

United States infantrymen and marines gained up to 600 yards along the bitterly-held Southern Okinawa battlefield yesterday during bloody fighting in which a Japanese counterattack was repulsed and seaborne landings behind Yank lines broken up.

Near the center of the line the Three Hundred and Thirty-third regiment of the Ninety-sixth division moved up Conical hill, a key position before the towns of Shuri and Yonabaru.

Take High Ground

Immediately to the west the First marine division took high ground protecting Shuri after beating off a counterattack in which 100 Japanese were killed.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz's communiqué today reported only slight changes in the western sector where the Sixth marine division is bearing hard on Naha, Okinawa's capital city.

In this area, however, the enemy attempted an amphibious landing behind the Yank lines in the Macchuato airfield sector. This was broken up with a number of enemy boats destroyed by ships' and shore gunfire.

The marines evidently still were about 500 yards from Naha, with a river barrier in-between. Nimitz reported the Yanks were "under heavy enemy artillery and mortar fire, and progress was difficult."

Infantry Advances

In general, the infantrymen holding down the eastern half of the Okinawa front moved ahead 300 yards on their right flank and 600 on their left. The Seventy-seventh infantry division, meeting exceptionally strong resistance, took high ground northeast of Shuri, Okinawa's second city.

Cabinet Changes Believed Likely

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

WASHINGTON, May 13 (AP)—Best available opinion is that while an earlier year may bring virtually an entire change in cabinet personnel, President Truman will move slowly in that direction.

Capitol Hill sources are confident, however, that Judge Lewis B. Schwab, former senior of the Supreme Court, will be one of the early additions to the Truman administration.

Most observers think he will replace Miss Frances Perkins as secretary of labor.

Schwab, now a federal district judge for eastern Washington, visited with the president at the Blair House recently and reportedly went home to think over Mr. Truman's plans for him.

Morgenthau May Leave

Nobody seems to doubt that Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau, Jr., will leave his post after the Seventh War Loan drive. A friend and neighbor of the late President Roosevelt, he is said to be willing to step aside to allow his replacement by a man of Mr. Truman's own personal selection.

One of the closest of Mr. Truman's friends in the holdover cabinet—Postmaster General Frank C. Walker—is stepping out June 30.

The president named Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan to his own state of Missouri to that post when Walker asked to be relieved.

That is the first cabinet change since Mr. Truman entered the White House on April 12.

Del Monte Air Center Captured By U. S. Infantry

By FRED HAMFSON

MANILA, Monday, May 14 (AP)—Japan's vast Del Monte air center on Northern Mindanao fell to elements of the United States Fourth Infantry division without serious opposition Saturday but in the Davao sector the Twenty-fourth division was fighting one of the bitterest battles of the Philippines campaign.

Australians, meanwhile, captured del-defended Wewak on New Guinea in a major triumph.

Capture Del Monte

Maj. Gen. Rapp Brush's Fourth, which invaded Northern Mindanao on Thursday, swept over Del Monte, which includes three airfields and dispersed a Japanese force to the east.

The Yanks pressed two miles beyond Del Monte in a drive to join other American troops in the south and bisect the island.

West of the captured Davao city, on Southwestern Mindanao, the Japanese added rockets to their machinegun, mortar and artillery defenses as intensity of the fight mounted.

A battalion of the Twenty-fourth division landed on Wednesday by a Japanese counterattack, linked up with other Yank elements Friday when the American bridgehead on the Talomo river was widened.

Seize Plane Engines

At one point in the jungled Davao battle zone Yanks smashed through Japanese lines and captured an estimated 10,000 worth of Japanese aircraft engines and plane parts.

Units of Australia's Sixth division, meantime, captured the long-contested city and peninsula of Wewak on Northeastern New Guinea in a swift drive from the west. The Aussies reached the edge of the western airstrip.

Another Australian force which invaded the Cape Moen area, east of Wewak, on Friday has consolidated its beachhead. Landing elements have driven three miles to within seven of a puncture with the western force.

Seizure of Wewak was the first important victory of the Australian troops who last January took over the job of clearing the so-called "rear areas" of Japan.

World War II seems to have settled one debate among military men—fixed fortifications can't be made impregnable.

The war has produced what experts point to as a pair of classic examples to prove that. The Siegfried line and Corridor.

From the lessons learned in those hard schools, it is exceedingly doubtful if any European nation again will build a line of fixed fortifications or this country rely on the strength of a fortress.

360,000 German Troops Give Up To Red Armies

Moscow Places German Dead or Captured in War at 12,600,000

By ROMNEY WHEELER

LONDON, Monday, May 14 (AP)—Four Russian armies have liberated all Czechoslovakia and Austria from Nazi die-hards—five days after German troops violated Germany's surrender and fought on against the Red army, Moscow said last night.

Announcing the surrender of 360,000 Nazi troops on all sectors of the eastern front during the last twenty-four hours, Moscow's war bulletin said the First, Second, Third and Fourth Ukrainian armies had closed in on German holdout positions in the woods of Czechoslovakia and Austria's high Alpine regions and had "cleared the occupied area of isolated German troops groupings."

War Criminals Resist

The enemy forces under command of Field Marshal Gen. Ferdinand Schoerner and Col. Gen. Otto Woelfel had resisted Germany's unconditional surrender since Tuesday. Schoerner himself has been named a war criminal by the Russians.

While the last remnants of Germany's "middle army group" were being driven from the forests and mountains of Bohemia and Northern Austria, Moscow announced that the total number of prisoners taken since Tuesday had swelled to 1,600,000. Ninety-one German generals were taken in the same period. The gigantic haul boosted to 2,860,000 the number of German troops killed or captured since the Red army's end-the-war offensive began January 12.

Nazi Losses 12,600,000

In nearly four years of war, the Russians have announced killing of more than 12,600,000 Nazi troops.

Among those surrendering to Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian army in Bohemia after a fruitless five-day attempt at a post-surrender war was the commander of the Third SS "Death's Head" tank division, a Maj. Gen. Backer.

Moscow dispatches indicated that a few scattered Nazi units still were hiding out in Czechoslovakia's forests, but these rapidly were being corralled into prisoner camps to join the thousands of German troops being shipped across Poland to the Soviet Union where they will be put to work restoring Russia's war-ravaged cities.

Malinovsky's army and the troops of Gen. Ivan S. Konev's First Ukrainian army, Gen. Andrei I. Yermenko's Fourth Ukrainian group and Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian outfit took a huge quantity of war equipment in the last day's roundup in Czechoslovakia and Austria, Moscow said.

The massive haul included 1,258 planes, 1842 tanks and 6,618 field guns.

The fat ration cut is only the latest of numerous moves in the same direction.

Black Markets Flourishing

It is conceded on all sides that meat black markets have flourished for months. They are spreading to sugar, eggs and some lesser commodities in short supply.

Food officials fear that as it becomes necessary to cut civilian supplies further to help feed Europe, more and more consumers—all anxious and financially able to eat better than ever before—will turn to black markets for supplies.

The time could come, these officials explain, when insufficient supplies moved through legitimate marketing channels to meet military requirements and rations of those civilians who choose not to patronize black markets or who do not have access to them.

Warnings on Spending

Warnings that excessive spending power might destroy the rationing system and bring on dangerous inflation were given early in the war by many economists and farm leaders. Among those issuing such warnings were Chester Davis, St. Louis banker and farm leader who served as war food administrator for a short while in 1943, and Albert S. Goss, master of the national grange.

Failure of the government to attempt to bring civilian buying power into balance with the supply of food and other civilian goods available at ceiling prices by means of an enforced savings plan was a factor contributing to Davis's resignation as food administrator.

Needs of Freed Europeans May Cut Home Food

By OVID A. MARTIN

Associated Press Farm Writer

WASHINGTON, May 13 (AP)—Ballooning needs of liberated peoples, plus the growing threat of black markets, are putting the war's heaviest strains on this nation's food rationing and price control system.

Many officials are frankly worried. Some fear the curbs may not be able to meet the tests as European necessities cut further into American supplies. Some predict more drastic control measures will be required. A few go so far as to say it may become necessary for the government to take over the food distribution system.

Suggests Federal Control

Weekend developments point up the increasing pressure:

1. President Truman in a letter to "Food for Freedom, Inc." said he "must and can find a way" to share American food with starving peoples.

2. Apparently signaling what that way will be, OPA boosted the point price of salad and cooking fats from six to ten points a pound, following up a recent official report that this nation "must be prepared to economize its use of fats and oils" if any real contribution is to be made to a pressing world shortage problem.

"It is most embarrassing," the Senate's dean confessed today. "I just don't know what to do."

It comes about this way: McKellar is acting chairman of the Senate Appropriations committee and always has fought against proposals to increase the pay of Congress members.

Gets $5,000 Raise

But when Vice President Truman moved to the White House McKellar became the permanent presiding officer of the Senate and, under long-existing law, received a pay boost from $10,000 to $15,000 a year.

He had nothing to do with that increase but he wonders how other senators may feel if, having just received a $5,000 boost himself, he should oppose any more money for them. While the expense allowance so far has been proposed only for House members, the general assumption is that a similar allowance for senators will come up during Senate consideration.

Committee Action Soon

The House-approved provision was written into the legislative appropriation bill. This measure probably will come before McKellar's committee the latter part of this week.

McKellar isn't saying what he will do but indications are that he will just "sit tight" and let the other members do the talking.

Marshall Urges All To Buy War Bonds

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, May 13 (AP)—A quick arraignment of Heinrich Himmler, Hermann Goering, Franz von Papen and Rudolf Hess as war criminals and a stepped-up manhunt for other missing Nazis appears today to be the chief concern of the Russians.

The Russians openly expressed themselves as believing many Nazis will be found hiding in Switzerland, Spain, Sweden and Argentina.

Suspicion persists here that it will take stern measures on the part of the United Nations to ferret out war criminals in these countries. The press over the weekend showed itself openly in favor of the swift action throughout the world in handling them.

World's Biggest Thief: Goering Known To Have Stolen Millions in Occupied Sections

By HOWARD COWAN

NEUSCHWANSTEIN CASTLE

Germany, May 13 (AP)—United States Seventh Army authorities have uncovered—over the fat-fisted reichsmarshal's own signature—sufficient evidence to convict Hermann Goering as one of the biggest thieves the world has ever known.

Here in this gaudy graystone castle, investigators found sheafs of correspondence between Goering and Mareus, minister of civil administration in eastern occupied areas, explaining in minute detail just how his men were to go about looting museums.

Millions Stolen

A small fraction of the booty is here. Paintings, statues, silver and

Promised Air Support

Goering was so enthusiastic he told Rosenberg he would place the full strength of the Luftwaffe at his disposal to expedite the project. The reichsmarshal emphasized, however, that no one should get the idea the wholesale removal of European art to Germany was for the personal and private glorification of himself or the fuhrer.

There were to be two museums—one at Linz in honor of Hitler and another at a place as yet undecided to perpetuate Goering's memory. The latter he proposed to give the German people on his sixtieth birthday.

Quotes President

Morgenthau quoted President Truman's statement that "our victory is but half-won. The west is free, but the east is still in bondage." Then the treasury chief added:

"And in addition to this, the vast responsibility of reconstruction in Europe is upon us. We cannot shrink without endangering all that we have already won in combat."

He said "there is no truce in this war for the men on Okinawa. The war is not over for the men who are already beginning to move from Europe to the Pacific."

"Let us demonstrate to the world again that free men—of their own volition—possess the self-discipline to shoulder their responsibilities. The buying of bonds is an act of simple faith—faith in ourselves, faith in the men who fight for us, faith in the future of democracy."

300 Seek To Adopt Abandoned Child

BALTIMORE, May 13 (AP)—The six-week-old baby girl found abandoned in a vestibule early Saturday will have no trouble finding someone to take care of her, telephone-weary police attest.

Within twenty-four hours of her discovery, about 300 persons called northwestern district police to inquire about adopting her.

Two policemen were kept busy telling people adoption was a matter for the juvenile court to pass on.

With the little girl, now doing well at City Hospital, was a note saying:

"Please give this baby a home or fine one for her. Her mother died at birth. Her father died in action. I have no way of keeping her. It was signed 'her aunt.'"

War Bond Drive For 14 Billions Gels Under Way

By HOWARD COWAN

WASHINGTON, May 13 (AP)—The Seventh War Loan drive was officially set off tonight by Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau, Jr., with the declaration that "the greatest challenge to American democracy still lies before us."

"That challenge is to our self-restraint, our self-discipline, our self-control," he said in a broadcast over the four major networks.

"What is demanded of us is this—that we accept triumph without relaxation. The fruits of peace are not yet ripe for us to pluck."

Real Start Today

The $14,000,000,000 bond drive actually swings formally under way tomorrow, Monday, May 14. Morgenthau told his audience millions of volunteer workers "will appeal to you to do your share—voluntarily as free people—in finishing the greatest war in the history of the world."

The quota for individuals is $7,000,000,000—corporations the same amount. Of the individuals' quota, $4,000,000,000 is the goal for "E" bonds, the low-priced war bonds bought by most Americans.

Not in any of the six war loans already held have individual and "E" bond sales been as high as the quotas in what the treasury calls the "mighty seventh."

Industrial Area Of Big Jap City Heavily Pounded

By JAMES LINDSLEY

GUAM, Monday, May 14 (AP)—A guilt fleet of more than 500 Superfortresses dumped 3,500 tons of fire bombs in daylight today on the teeming industrial section of Nagoya, Japan's third largest city, in the largest B-29 raid of the war.

Twice before Nagoya, with a population of about 1,500,000, has been subjected to Superfortress fire attacks. A spokesman for the Twenty-first Bomber Command expressed the hope that today's attack will prove a devastating blow to war industry there.

Results were not immediately known here

Five Target Areas

Five great circles in the northern section of the Honshu island city were designated as target areas. These included the Chigusa factory of the Nagoya arsenal, producing heavy guns and ammunition components, a large electrical plant, leading machine tool firms and plants producing aircraft and munitions.

In addition the designated targets included thousands of home factories turning out electrical parts and various instruments.

The spokesman said fewer large factories are in the area than were the target for previous Superfort missions.

The raid came as Japan's Tokyo radio reported 900 carrier-based planes and twenty or so Superfortresses hammered Kyushu, the southernmost Japanese mainland island in fourteen co-ordinated waves from 5:30 a. m. to 2 p. m. yesterday (Sunday), Japanese time.

Honshu City Bombed

In addition, Tokyo said, two Liberator bombers carried out a low-level bombing of Miyagi prefecture, south of Kobe on Honshu, at noon today.

The last B-29 raid on Nagoya was March 30 when a small force of Superforts hit the Mitsubishi engine plant against opposition. On March 18 and 19 Superforts destroyed three square miles of Nagoya.

Today's mission had a target area of nine square miles in North Nagoya, bordered on the south by the burned out Nagoya castle area and on the north by a horseshoe bend of the Yata river. It includes railroad stations.

Nagoya's heavier industries were smashed in earlier raids, which burned out five and four-tenths square miles of the city.

Many Flimsy Buildings

Most of Nagoya's construction is more modern than most large Japanese cities, but none is more than nine years old. The buildings are of typical flimsy frame and plaster.

"The bombers went in at medium altitude, attacking in a column of squadrons of eleven planes each. The great ships, based in the Marianas islands, rendezvoused close off the Japanese coast, showing American contempt for the quality of fighter opposition."

On the basis of eleven-man crews manning the B-29s, more than 5,000 American airmen participated in this mightiest aerial strike ever leveled against Nippon.

The target areas designated for fire bombs were among the densely populated in Nagoya, with 22,000 to 75,000 residents per square mile. Spokesmen said Japan could not avoid heavy casualties.

So huge was the B-29 force that the first Superfort was an hour and a half flying time enroute home from Japan by the time the last one started from the Marianas bases.

Greeks and Yugoslavs Face Starvation

BALTIMORE, May 13 (AP)—A

United Nations relief and rehabilitation administration official said today that liberation for the peoples of Greece and Yugoslavia "will be a mockery unless starvation can be avoided and acute needs met."

"Conditions in Greece are very bad-terrible. The situation in Yugoslavia is equally bad, particularly along the Dalmatian coast," reported Harry Greenstein, director of welfare of the Balkan mission of the UNRRA.

Greenstein was executive director of the Associated Jewish Charities of Baltimore before going to Cairo with the UNRRA.

His duties included responsibility for providing essential welfare service for thousands of Greek and Yugoslav refugees who fled from the Nazis.

FROSTBURG, May 13—John S. Bone, 51, a veteran of the World War I, who had been residing at the Gunter hotel, died Sunday morning in Memorial hospital, Cumberland, where he had been a patient since Wednesday night, following a heart attack.

A son of the late Henry and Mollie Preston Bone, he is the last surviving member of his immediate family. Joseph Bone, Akron, O., is his uncle, and the late Miss Eva Bone, for many years money order clerk at the Frostburg post office, was a half-sister.

The city clerk was instructed to request Charles O. Hall, Baltimore, to audit the books for the past three years, dating back to the time the present administration took office.

In reply to an inquiry of the Frostburg Business Association relating to additional industries for Frostburg, it was decided that the city will allow tax exemptions on real and personal property for three years contingent on the number of people the plant might employ.

War Veterans

And Farming

FROM PROF. OLIVER E. BAKER, who lectures on economic geography at the University of Maryland, comes an expression of dissent to a view that has won some support among certain observers of the American scene. He does not concur in the theory that returning war veterans will flock to the farms.

Speaking before the Academy of World Economics at Washington, Professor Baker went so far as to say that farm boys who have seen the world in the armed services may prove to be a "lost generation" as far as agriculture is concerned. Given a taste of urban prosperity, he declared, they will not go back to the country.

It is not exactly a case of "How ya gonna keep 'em down on the farm after they've seen Parris?" to quote a morose song of World War I. Professor Baker based his prediction on cold economic facts. In 1939, he said, about half of the nation's farms produced less than $600 worth of products, including those consumed by farm families, and veterans simply will not be satisfied with such an income as long as they can do better in the cities.

This sounds persuasive, and it is true that there has been a wartime population drift to the cities of the East, the Lake states and the West Coast that may accentuate the problem of manning the farms. But it will be noted that Professor Baker based his forecast on the assumption that there will be plenty of urban jobs. He may have underestimated the great changes that will come with peace.

Besides, farm income has increased during the war years and promises to stay high for several years. Farm living is more attractive than it was formerly. And then there is that old farm-ownership yearning, which persists among so many in spite of demonstrably slim prospects and the handicap of inexperience which always carries the notion that one can own one's own place with an assured living will nilly.

Two Big Problems

Of the Pacific War

SOME GAIN should result from publication of the War department's employment plans, although the announcement would have been deferred if the information presented to the House Military Affairs committee had not leaked out in garbled form.

The war that is still to be won in the Pacific means, as the war department's announcement shows, that this nation must solve the greatest and most complicated military problems in history before Japan is completely defeated. It will not be solved at the lowest possible cost in human life unless every American assumes his share of it.

War Plant Disposal

Is Up to Congress

MANY EVENTS are occurring which, in the course of more sensational events, escape attention. The other day the department of Justice issued a report on the war plants of America which was buried in inside pages at a time when Germany was falling to pieces.

This report recommended that war plants be leased rather than sold as they become available for disposal. The argument is that this will give business and the government opportunity to determine more realistically the ultimate sale price and will encourage bidding by small businesses.

By time of expiration of the lease, it was contended, there would be greater possibilities for the use of new processes and the production of products not previously on the American market.

Normally, at least six months will be required to convert a war plant to peacetime production; the department contends, and an equally long time for a prospective purchaser to collect data necessary to determine whether he wants to bid.

The program for disposal of war plants will be formulated by Congress. Many views beside that of the department of Justice will be considered.

Hallowed

Ground

THIS COUNTRY has never been reminded of its duty as stated by Abraham Lincoln, to care for him who shall have borne the battle. If his fate was to pay the supreme sacrifice, the caring for him means the caring for his burial place.

Following this policy, which is dear to the hearts of the American people, the federal government has authorized the national graves registration chairman of the American Legion, and assistants, to proceed abroad for a survey of the condition of American World War I cemeteries.

Nearly all these 30,504 dead were put to their last resting place near where they died. There are six cemeteries in France, one in Belgium and one in England. It is the purpose of the Legion to ascertain their condition and recommend steps necessary to restore them.

It is also fitting that veterans of the First World War should make arrangements for the registration of the 180,000 dead of that war. The armed forces have made the burials and kept the records with faithfulness to duty, but in time these valiant men will be returned home or assembled in consecrated ground near where they fell. Their care will be as much a national obligation as the care of World War I veterans in overseas cemeteries, and the 394,000 who are buried at home in national cemeteries.

Air Route Plans

Are Being Rushed

A SURVEY of world air route plans indicates that the nations are bestirring themselves as greatly to establish air lines as they were 400 years ago to win colonies in the New World. If all the blue-printed airlines became realities, the skies will be so full of planes that collisions will be a common feature of air travel.

Both Britain and America have well developed plans for lines that will include nearly every country. The British make no secret of their conviction that they must be supreme in air transportation as they have been for centuries in ocean transportation. American routes and equipment already have a long head start, especially in the Western Hemisphere and the Pacific. Russia's plans undoubtedly are far-reaching.

Every small nation is similarly ambitious for air renown. Liberia proposes to cover Africa and span the Atlantic to America. The Portuguese want lines across Africa to the East Indies and to Brazil. China proposes to cover India, Burma, Malaya, Thailand, Indo-China, the Philippines, Japan and Korea. Eventually China expects to project scheduled flights to the East Indies, Australia, Europe, Africa, South America, West Indies, the United States and Canada.

If every nation is to cover the world with its airlines, the question is raised, where will all the lines find enough passengers to stave off bankruptcy?

The Critics Go

On Forever

RUSSIA'S REVOLUTION occurred more than a quarter century ago and yet there seems to be one field which not even communism has been able to dent in the slightest. That is the department of music criticism. It is as if the music critics were imperishable. Sergei Sergeyevich Prokofiev, for instance, is the genius of present-day Russian music, the composer of five symphonies, some operas and innumerable minor scores. One would think that in Russia, of all countries, Prokofiev's works would be received with respect and, at the least, polite admiration.

But no, the Russian music critics are as independent as the crabs in the Charybdis. They write bitterly of Prokofiev's music for his opera "War and Peace." But it is not because of the unoriginal title. They indict him for his neglect of the traditional long arias, they condemn him for various and sundry other musical misdeeds. And, like all composers and musicians, Prokofiev goes on composing and playing as if he hadn't heard a word.

What causes sleeplessness among Japanese leaders is the knowledge that peace terms to Germany started as unconditional surrender and remained unconditional surrender to the end.

Dandelions are edible greens. This fact gives some a better victory garden in their front lawn than in their back yard.

Tokyo papers have begun to razz Jap Premier Suzuki. What's the matter, isn't he losing the war fast enough?

A pessimist is a fellow who fears that along with the postwar motor cars will come a lot more traffic lights.

THE LITTLE HUMAN THINGS

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

The big things that men do attract attention and people remember them, but the little human things that men do are what make people love them.

When a great man dies people like to talk about the little human things that characterized his life. Going out of his way to do something simple and sincere, enacting unusual kindnesses, and never thinking he was any bigger or better than the one he served. As I understand greatness, that's what it is.

It was these little human things that gave fame to Will Rogers, O. O. McIntyre and Ernie Pyle. Bigger than the fame was the love that each accumulated from millions of human hearts. These millions read these writers because they represented their own thoughts, experiences and aspirations. The little human things of everyday life, in which the great majority of people are interested, made up the contributions of these three men.

I was standing in line to get a ticket to a movie recently and got to talking to the lady ahead of me. I asked her if she read the comics, and she said she did. Then I asked her which one she liked best. She named a popular one that dealt exclusively with the family, and said she liked it because it illustrated so many little things that happened in every family.

We can forgive and forget a great many things in people that we don't like so long as they remain honestly human, approachable, kindly and lovable. The humblest and poorest man in heart, be among the great of this earth.

The little human things that characterize so many lives are in reality the important and enduring things. They are what shape our character and give to the friends that we hold to throughout life. As a matter of fact, it's the little human things that are interwoven and made a part of our daily lives that make all mankind akin.

Only by habitually giving attention to the doing of the little human things do we gain the kind of happiness that is both inspiring and enduring.

Adm. Leahy's Plan To Blockade Japs and Starve Them into Submission Is Revived

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Back in 1937, 38, Adm. William Leahy, now chief of staff to the White House, devised a strategy against Japan, which if put into effect, might have prevented Pearl Harbor and even World War II.

Today, the old Leahy strategy is being dusted off, especially on Capitol Hill, as the best means of finishing the war with Japan. It would save thousands of American lives, its proponents claim, and would serve as example of how wars can be won—or prevented—by naval blockade.

Historically Important

The proposals made by Adm. Leahy constitute one of the most important and unwritten chapters in the history of what happened shortly before the war began. Leahy, then chief of naval operations and one of the best strategists the navy has seen in years, saw all too clearly that war was coming both in Europe and Asia. At that time, 1937, Japan had just begun her full-scale invasion of China, and it was Leahy's idea to make an example of Japan which would show Hitler and Mussolini—then feeling their oats—that the United States meant business and would stand four-square behind the peace machinery of the world.

Therefore, he proposed to Roosevelt a naval blockade of Japan in co-operation with the British fleet, using the peace machinery of the League of Nations and the Nine-Power Pact which guarantees the sovereignty of China.

Leahy argued that by keeping the United States Navy in the Philippines and the British Fleet at Singapore, which would show Hitler and Mussolini—then feeling their oats—that the United States meant business and would stand four-square behind the peace machinery of the world.

British Start Blockade

President Roosevelt agreed. So did the British. And in the late summer of 1937, the British actually detailed six battleships, twelve cruisers and twenty destroyers to leave the British home waters for Singapore. Just at that moment, however, the Axis capitals apparently got wind of what was happening and the British started their unofficial submarine campaign off the coast of Spain, which detained the British fleet at Gibraltar.

A couple of months later, however, Roosevelt revived the idea and sent Norman Davis, late head of the Red Cross, to Brussels for a meeting of the Nine-Power Pact signatories called to protect China from Japan. In the interim, Roosevelt had delivered his famous Chicago quarantine speech, warning that the United States might have to help out a quarantine around an aggressor nation. This was part of the build-up for Adm. Leahy's plan to quarantine Japan.

However, the Brussels Conference fizzled—largely because of sabotage by the State department in Washington. Norman Davis found every move he made undermined by the career diplomats in Washington, some of them quite frankly believing that it was best to give the Axis more rope. (It is this same group which now believes Germany should be built up as a buffer state against Russia.)

Part of Norman Davis's trouble was also the isolationist press, led by the Chicago Tribune and the New York News, which kept hammering away at the idea that Roosevelt was trying to get us into war. (After Pearl Harbor, they never remembered Roosevelt's efforts to head off war and their own sabotage of his efforts.)

The Panay Incident

At any rate, the plan to blockade Japan, following the failure of the Brussels conference in October 1937, was dropped. But Adm. Leahy revived it again a year later, when in December 1938, the Japs sank the United States gunboat Panay and the British gunboat Ladybird.

Leahy recognized this for what it was, a deliberate attempt by the Jap war lords to test out how much insult the United States would take, and to make Britain and the United States lose face with the Chinese. Accordingly, he rushed to the State department and all one Sunday afternoon, Dec. 13, 1938, one day after the sinking of the Panay, he urged Cordell Hull to seize this psychological moment and to put the blockade of Japan into effect.

The British were also willing to co-operate. And, Leahy pointed out, in another year, war, inevitably breaking out in Europe, would tie up the British fleet and they could not possibly help us in the Pacific. Russia, he also pointed out, had sixty submarines at Vladivostok, ready to help us cut off all scrap iron, all oil, all cotton and copper from Japan. Without these, he argued, the Japanese war machine would be paralyzed.

Pacing the floor of Hull's office with Leahy was Hurler, the ambassador to Germany and one of the State department's foremost appeasers. He opposed Leahy at every turn, finally convinced cautious Cordell Hull that Leahy was too vigorous, that it was best to appease Japan.

Less than one year later, Hitler had invaded Poland, the British fleet was desperately needed to defend British home waters, and the fat was in the fire. From that point on there was no possible way the United States could blockade Japan—though many people have never understood why we went to the opposite extreme and increased our shipments of oil and scrap iron to Japan so that she laid in tremendous reserves before Pearl Harbor. (Ambassador Joseph C. Drew, territorial chief responsible for the policy of selling oil and scrap iron, has now been made under secretary of state.)

Japan can be Starved

But beginning with V-E day last week, the possibility of blockading Japan for the first time since 1939 was completely reversed. Since V-E day, the British fleet is entirely free to operate in the Pacific. So are Russian submarines. So is the Navy, now no longer needed to watch for submarines in the Caribbean or the Atlantic.

Today it is possible to throw up such a naval blockade around the main Jap islands, augmented by air patrols, that hardly a ton of raw materials could reach Jap war factories. The Dutch East Indies, which would show Hitler and Mussolini—then feeling their oats—that the United States meant business and would stand four-square behind the peace machinery of the world.

Furthermore, Japan has to import part of her food to live. In fact Japan's main islands are very much like the British Isles. They simply cannot live isolated. Without food from the United States, the British Isles would have gone under in this war, and at one time during the height of the submarine war, they were on the verge of doing so.

What many senators point out, therefore, is that while Japan has no ally such as England had to send her food, she does have a stubborn, fanatical population which will fight to the last ditch if their islands are invaded, killing thousands of American boys in return.

Therefore, they argue: Why not intensify the B-29 raids over Japan?

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

I've been making my final preparations to hit the Eastern Camp this morning. Really had a hard time getting by bags packed. By the time I put in my arch supporters, vitamin pills, hair restorer, iron tonic, yoyo, chicken inspector badge and bean shooter, there wasn't room enough for my ukulele.

But my troubles really started when I went up in the attic to get my suitcase. A family of mice were living in it. I hated to get rough; two of them outweighed me. So I said to the lady mouse, "Madam, could you kindly evacuate my grip please?" She gave me a naughty stare. "Harold," she cried to her husband, "Harold, don't let him talk to me like that. What are you anyway—a mouse of a man?" After several minutes of this undignified quibbling, I went back down stairs. The mice explained that they couldn't get out today, they were expecting a talent scout from Walt Disney.

So I decided to go shopping for a bag and it was very boring. First I had to find a shop, then I had to look around and pick out something I liked. Then there was a long discussion with the store detective. Finally I decided to come right out and buy one. I ended up with a genuine turtleskin bag. I know it's turtleskin because I've tried to reach for it, it pulls in its handles and crawls under the bed.

LOW-DOWN THIEF TAKES FAMILY'S RED POINTS

Mrs. John Hill wouldn't have minded so much if her imitation pearl choker had been stolen... but her precious red points! The crime was revealed when she discovered that extra red points were going into the garbage can simply because she wasn't saving odd bits of fat, as well as the easy amounts from frying.

Now she saves every scrap of fat trimmed off meat or left on plates. Once a week she melts it down, pours it into the sewage can. It adds up to more points for the Hill family. More fat to help make war- and home-front essentials. Hooray!

Regional Plan Is Seen Next Step For World Peace

By DAVID LAWRENCE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 12—Having failed to achieve here a world-wide organization to enforce peace in all circumstances, the next step now seems to be in the direction of regional systems.

The difference between the two ideas is, of course, that in the one all the military power of the world would be concentrated on the task of squelching any threat of war, and in the other the world organization delegates regional enforcement to regional bodies.

In a practical sense, this means that the inter-American countries could receive from the Security Council a delegation of power to handle aggression in the hemisphere when aggression arises from any source. But this also means that in European affairs a similar delegation of power would have to be made.

Simple on Face

On its face, this looks like a simple solution, but everything depends on what effect the veto power granted at Yalta to the big powers will have on the exercise of delegated powers. Thus, if any major power can block any step leading up to delegation of authority to a regional system, the result is virtually the same as if there had been no regional arrangement. For a European power could block action by any American country against aggressors inside this hemisphere and any American country could block action by any European country.

In the final analysis there is a readiness to allow the Security Council to delegate power to regional bodies but with the understanding that the action must be the joint operation of the members in that area and not a unilateral or single-handed affair.

No matter which area is affected, whether the American hemisphere or the European continent, the fact remains that nothing can be done if any of the major powers exercise their veto power in the Security Council.

This is recognized here and is accepted as one of the unfortunate results of the Yalta agreement, but there is an effort here nevertheless to limit the veto powers of the major countries so that they will not be able to block recommendations made to the court of public opinion by the council.

Recommendations Not Blocked

As matters stand now, any major power which is itself party to a dispute cannot vote to prevent a recommendation or finding from being publicized. But there is nothing in the charter as amended at Yalta which would prevent any major power that happens not to be a party to a dispute from blocking such a recommendation, anyway. Thus, France and Italy might have a quarrel and the Security Council might consider recommendations for settlement. France herself as a member of the council would not be able to block the publication of a recommendation. But Russia, being bound by a treaty of alliance with France, could block the making of any recommendations by the Security Council.

If the charter is amended so that no nation which is or is not a party to a dispute may not use her own veto power to prevent the publication of findings or recommendations for a solution of a dispute that threatens peace, the situation would be solved.

Actually all that is sought here is a chance to mobilize world opinion which is being made but at the moment the proposal for limitation of the veto power has to be submitted to various delegations for their approval and the Big Four themselves are not yet agreed on it.

Big Four Not Agreed

Anthony Eden's discussion with the press this week was designed to reveal the effort at revision which is being made, but at the moment the proposal for limitation of the veto power has to be submitted to various delegations for their approval and the Big Four themselves are not yet agreed on it.

Everything here revolves around protection of Russia's interests. Russia, in the first instance, insisted on the veto power or would not have joined in any world league. America and Britain themselves were ready to go all the way and submit to the discipline of a security council. The present status is that no military coercion can be applied against any major power and hence the drive is to get such machinery into the charter as will make it possible for the world to learn by an official pronouncement of the council who is and who is not an aggressor in any controversy that arises to threaten world peace.

It was an afternoon of soaring scores. Centerville blasted the Midland Indians, 13-5, at Centerville. Lonaconing trounced Frostburg American Legion, 11-3, at Frostburg, and the Brewers edged out Cumberland Legion, 14-12, on the pitcher field here.

Charles Doyle's Queen City crew, after seeing its lead wiped out in the eighth by a five-run Legion rally, came from behind in the bottom of the same frame to count eight times and pull the game out of the fire.

Bill Starts Rally
Howard "Bub" Bill, Queen City hurler, who received credit for the victory although he had to have assistance from Bill Stevenson in the ninth, started the game-winning rally with a single. Don "Bubbles" Whiteman walked, Dick Lynch singled, Charles Walters batted to a hit to short, Nick Perazzo walked, Earl "Booby" Tysinger lashed out a single to left for his fourth consecutive safety, "Spike" Herboldshelmer walked, Palmer Eimer singled, Stevenson flied out to left, Bill singled and Whiteman and Lynch grounded out, Frank Williams and Fred "Red" Moore batted. Bill pitched all but the last two-thirds of an inning and gave up eleven of the Legion's twelve hits. "Lefty" Moore and Ralph Dickie worked on the mound for the Legion with Moore being charged with the defeat.

Tysinger drove out four consecutive singles for Queen City while Walters and Lynch each had three blows with two of the latter's doubles. Clark sparked the Legion attack with four for five.

Evans Features for Reds
Glenn Evans, Centerville hurler, pitched eight hits in the eighth and one-third innings he worked, he fired the third strike across nine times and had two hits in three trips, including a double. He fanned the first five men to face him. In the ninth when Midland scored all of its runs, Evans was relieved by Milton Rose, who retired the last two batters.

The Reds sewed up the game in the third and fourth innings when they scored seven times. In the third, Glenn Evans, Alton Nave, George Cook, Verville Nave and Roy Mickey each singled. Three more runners crossed the payoff plate in the fourth when Stein singled, Evans doubled and Alton Nave and George Cook each singled.

Midland's runs in the ninth were the result of a single by McCullum, an error, singles by Pat Corrigan and George Beal, a double of John Roguish which drove Evans to cover, a single by Taylor and a fly to left by Lew Yates.

The Indians also used two pitchers. Jim Winters, the losing hurler, was relieved in the sixth by Roguish after allowing eleven hits.

Dodgers Capture Eighth Straight
BROOKLYN, May 13 (AP)—With Cincinnati leading Brooklyn 2-1 at the end of four innings, rain forced the cancellation of the second game of a doubleheader today after the Dodgers had won the opener 10-3 for their eighth straight.

A paid attendance of 25,144 saw Curt Davis, veteran right-hander, register his fourth success in the opener as the only Cincinnati hurler who scored in the seventh inning when Frank McCormick homered with two aboard.

Howard Fox, rookie right-hander, who started for the Reds, issued four passes in the third to help the Dodgers score their first two runs in the fifth he yielded three hits and two more tallies and was pounded off the mound in the sixth. In that frame the Dodgers bunched four hits, one of which was a home run by Augie Galan, and scored three additional markers.

Walter Beck was pounded for three more runs in the eighth. Although he made only two hits, Dixie Walker scored four times. The Box:

er, was relieved in the sixth
Roguish after allowing eleven hits.

"E" Bond Sales Total $211,367 As Drive Opens

B-Hour Is Set This Afternoon; Caravan Scheduled This Week

With the mighty Seventh War Loan drive opening today, John J. McMullen, chairman for Allegany county, disclosed last night that the sale of "E" bonds here from April 9 to May 10 totaled $211,367.50 on the basis of Federal Reserve Bank figures.

Although "E" bonds sold in the April 9-May 10 period will be included in the war loan drive, the county has an unusually high goal, McMullen pointed out, a goal which means that everyone must buy more bonds than in any previous campaign.

The "E" bond quota for the county is $1,350,000 which makes it necessary to raise half a million dollars more than in the Sixth War Loan drive if the campaign which officially opens today is to be a success, McMullen stated. He added, "We need the effort of everyone to put it over the top."

B-Hour This Afternoon

B-hour in local retail stores is scheduled this afternoon as the first special event to boost the sale of "E" bonds, and in the hour from 2 to 3 o'clock this afternoon merchants will suspend the sale of merchandise to concentrate their efforts on selling bonds.

Another special feature is scheduled later this week when a war loan band caravan of the Mountain District posts of the American Legion and Vulture Local, No. 164, Forty and Eight, will tour Allegany county on Friday and Saturday.

During the caravan, military equipment sent here from Baltimore will be displayed and present plans provide for demonstrations of amphibious ducks, a scout car, ambulance, bomb conveyor truck and some other pieces of equipment.

Rally Here Friday

The program opens at 4 p. m. Friday at Mt. Savage and will include selections by the Mt. Savage Volunteer Fire Department band. A rally is scheduled for city hall plaza here at 8 p. m. with music to be furnished by a local band.

Saturday's program begins at Westernport where the caravan will be from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. and where lunch will be served. The group will be at Barton from 1:30 to 2 p. m.; Lonaconing, 2:30 to 4:30 p. m.; Midland, 5 to 5:30 p. m.; and Frostburg at 6 p. m., remaining at the latter community for a couple of hours.

Oakland and Kitzmiller groups have been invited to attend the Frostburg rally and Keyser and Piedmont residents have been invited to the Westernport exhibit.

Show Coming in June

Perhaps the outstanding feature of the Seventh War Loan campaign here will be the "Here Is Your Infantry" show to be held in Port Hill high school stadium on the night of June 16.

The show opens in Baltimore today and David W. Sloan and Vincent Ingram, members of Port Hill high school, will be in charge of the show to go to Baltimore today to attend the preview of the production.

Mason George Held For Police Probe

Arrested Saturday afternoon, Mason George, Elder street, is held in the city jail pending further investigation into a robbery at Pluma's restaurant near the B and O.

George had in his possession when he was taken into custody sixteen meal ticket books issued by the YMCA and missing from the restaurant, according to State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris, but the prosecutor said George denies stealing into Pluma's establishment.

The restaurant was entered on March 25 and again on April 29, according to city police, who said that $400 was stolen on the first occasion and $85 was taken the last time.

According to Harris, George said he found twenty-eight meal ticket books in a sack in a vacant lot while walking from his home to the B and O Y.M.C.A.

Harris added that George told him he sold twelve books, valued at $10 each, to a barber and former prizefighter, George W. Lewis, making the sales over a period of several days.

Some of the meal ticket books bore the names of persons to whom they had been issued while others were blank and Harris said that although George knew some of the persons whose names were on the books he made no effort to return them.

George was arrested at 1:30 p. m. Saturday by Sgt. R. Johnston and Officer P. A. Shober.

Sgt. Robert Lannon Returns to States From Prison Camp

Tech. Sgt. Robert M. Lannon, 29 son of Mrs. Charles Wotring, 119 West First street, who was liberated from a German prisoner of war camp April 9, landed in this country by plane May 7 and expects to come home early next week to spend a six-day furlough.

Sgt. Lannon telephoned his mother when he landed at Mitchell field, Long Island, and informed her that he would be stationed at Camp Kilmer, N. J., until coming home on furlough. Mrs. Wotring is now visiting him at the camp.

Although he told his mother that he was wounded on Christmas day, three days after his capture by the Germans, Sgt. Lannon was unable to give any details. He expects to report to Newton D. Baker General Hospital, Martinsburg, W. Va., after leaving Camp Kilmer today.

Sgt. Lannon, who went overseas March 1, 1944, landed in France with an outfit of combat engineers. He took part in the Battle of the Bulge, and was captured in Belgium before going into Luxembourg, where he was captured last December 22.

A native of Elkins, W. Va., he was employed in the Western Maryland shops and as a machinist at the Kelly-Springfield plant prior to entering the army January 1, 1943.

Sgt. Lannon trained at Camp McCoy, Wis., before attending signal corps school at Camp Crowder, Mo. He received advanced training at Fort Monmouth, N. J., before going overseas.

Walker To Address Local Food Dealers

Harry W. Walker, Baltimore, secretary-manager of the Independent Retail Food Distributors Association of Maryland, and E. E. Bangert, Annapolis, president of the state association, will be the speakers at the meeting of the independent Retail Food Dealers Association of Western Maryland to be held in Central YMCA at 8:15 p. m. Tuesday.

Walker has been outspoken in his criticism of the OPA.

At the session, the food dealers will discuss the subject of closing their stores one day each week out of consideration of their employees.

A month ago, the association recommended that food stores be closed one afternoon each week, but following that suggestion numerous requests were received to close one full day each week, preferably on Monday, which ordinarily is a slack business day.

Such action was suggested because of the shortage of help and because employees are overworked.

Two Allegany County Soldiers Are Discharged under New Point System

Staff Sgt. Rudolph L. Appell Will Go Back to His Prewar Job with B. and O.; Cpl. Leo R. Fleagle Returns Home

One of the first Cumberland servicemen to be discharged under the War department's new point system said yesterday that he plans to get back to his prewar job with the B. and O. railroad.

He is Staff Sgt. Rudolph L. Appell, 30 son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton A. Appell, and husband of Mrs. Betty Herring Appell, 19 West First street.

Sgt. Appell, a veteran of the North African, Sicilian and Italian campaigns during twenty-nine months of overseas service with an ordnance outfit, came back to this country March 23 to spend a forty-five day furlough with his family. He reported to Port George G. Meade last Wednesday, expecting to be sent back overseas to rejoin his outfit, but instead he was discharged Saturday and came home to stay.

After graduating from Pennsylvania avenue school, Sgt. Appell was employed in the textile department at the Celanese plant, and later became a carman in the B and O, back shop, where he worked for five years before entering the army in April, 1941.

He received training at the Aberdeen proving grounds, Aberdeen, Md., and Fort Lewis, Wash., before going on maneuvers in the Mojave desert, Calif. He went overseas November 2, 1942, and landed in North Africa November 19, twelve days after the North African invasion began.

Sgt. Appell fought through the Tunisian campaign and the invasion of Sicily, after which his outfit was sent to Naples in Italy. He holds the African-European-Middle Eastern ribbon with three stars, representing the campaigns of Sicily, Naples and Poggia, and Rome and Arno; the American Defense ribbon, denoting army service before Pearl Harbor was attacked; and the Army Good Conduct ribbon.

He married the former Miss Betty Herring a month ago when he came home on his first furlough from overseas duty.

Cpl. Leo R. Fleagle, 28 son of Mrs. Frantz Patow and Vonder Fleagle, Corrigantown, also was discharged from service at Fort Meade on Saturday. He had completed a sixty-day furlough last week and was at Fort Meade awaiting orders to return to his outfit in the Pacific.

Cpl. Fleagle entered the army February 25, 1941, and served thirty-eight months with a coast artillery unit in the Pacific. He landed at Pearl Harbor four days after the Japs attacked it, and remained there more than two years.

Before coming home on furlough, Cpl. Fleagle was stationed on the island of Tinian, and expected to rejoin his outfit there when he learned that he was to be discharged under the point system.

Eagles Lodge Honors Mothers Of Servicemen

Cumberland Eagle No. 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, paid special tribute to Gold Star mothers and the mothers of servicemen in the annual Mothers' day observance at the Eagles home here yesterday afternoon.

Sixty-four new members were initiated in a Mothers' day class, and C. William H. Baer, past state president of the Eagles, urged members of the lodge and their families to renew their war efforts so that mothers can be presented with the greatest gift of all, "the return of their sons and the return of peace and happiness to hearth and home."

Baer told his listeners that "among our foremost thoughts are the Gold Star mothers, the largest number we have ever known in our nation's history." He said "our greetings to them are clouded with sadness and stained with tears, and added that "across distant seas in foreign soils sleep sons who will never again know their mothers' embrace."

"Will Not Forget"

Pledging mothers that the Eagles "will not forget" the sacrifices of their sons on the fighting fronts, Baer said the lodge is planning through partial use of the Eagles' Memorial Foundation fund, now being raised, to provide scholarships for some of the sons of Eagle servicemen. Other uses of the fund will be for philanthropic and charitable causes "serving the ideals for which our Eagle brothers fight," Baer asserted.

Baer traced the origin of Mothers' day to the Eagles national organization, and recalled that the observance first was proposed publicly by Frank E. Heiling, late managing editor of The Eagle Magazine in an address before Indianapolis Eagles in 1904. Later Eagle aerie, he said, sponsored the observance day until it became a national observance by presidential proclamation in 1914.

It was Miss Ann Mae Jarvis, Philadelphia, Baer reminded, who proposed that the second Sunday in May be named Mothers' day and who suggested the wearing of carnations as the Mothers' day flower.

Julius E. Schindler, local attorney, was master of ceremonies. Edward Fahey, worthy president, conducted the initiation ceremonies.

Refreshments were served following the service. Members of the board of trustees, Francis H. Schuller, chairman; John H. Hager and William T. Rollins, were in charge of arrangements.

The clothing drive which closed here several days ago was termed satisfactory by Mayor Thomas S. Post over the weekend, in announcing that 50,000 pounds of clothing has already been shipped and that an additional 20,000 pounds has been sorted and packed and will be shipped this week.

Officers will be elected at the meeting of the Tri-State Traffic club tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the Hotel Algonquin, Ralph E. Lashley, president of the club, announced over the weekend.

Leo H. Kelly, traffic manager of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company will make an informative talk on the newly proposed spotting charge for placing freight cars on private sidings.

The Rev. Warren Seager, rector of the Episcopal church, Martinsburg, W. Va., will be the speaker at the meeting of the Rotary club here tomorrow at 12:15 p. m. in Central YMCA.

Richard Gordon, Gonzaga high school junior, Washington, D. C., won the annual oratorical contest of the Catholic Students Mission Crusade held at Catholic university Friday night. Patricia Christ, Catholic Girls' Central high, Cumberland, Western Maryland winner was one of the contestants.

Mary Louise Bender, Allegany high school student, won the Frostburg State Teachers college annual music scholarship contest Friday. Sponsored by the Phi Omicron Delta Sorority at the college.

Miss Bender, a pianist, won over Clara Sigler, St. Peter's high school, Westernport, also a pianist, and June Rodda, Beall high, Frostburg, a vocalist.

The scholarship provides for one semester of study in music at Frostburg State Teachers college.

VFW Must Report On Americanism Day Observance

Names of Groups Taking Part Will Be Sent to Justice Department

Henry Hart Post, No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, must report to the immigration and naturalization service of the Department of Justice organizations which take part in the "I Am an American Day" program on Sunday in Port Hill high school stadium, according to James W. Beacham, past post commander and chairman of the committee in charge.

Beacham said he has received a letter from James W. Butterfield, director of the Baltimore division of the immigration and naturalization service, informing him that after final arrangements for the program are completed, the information should be forwarded to his office.

Shows Form of Ceremony

In addition to showing which organizations accepted invitations to participate, the form also will show the form of the ceremony, whether it includes recitation, addresses, music and the approximate number of persons taking part. Beacham added that the form to be filled out in connection with the observance of "I Am an American Day" also includes organizations which declined invitations to participate.

As an added feature of the observance here, local theaters will show short subjects on Americanism this week, Beacham said, adding that names of local citizens who will speak on Americanism in county high schools will be announced within a short time.

As a part of the "I Am an American Day" program, foreign born residents of the county who were naturalized within the past year have been invited to be special guests at the service in the stadium, and Beacham said, they will be seated in a special section of the grandstand.

Many Servicemen Naturalized

He added that Butterfield has informed him that 102,149 members of the armed forces have been naturalized since Pearl Harbor, and that 11,493 soldiers, sailors and marines have been naturalized by representatives of the immigration and naturalization service who have traveled to every theater of war.

Invitations to participate in the parade and service have been sent to 210 organizations, and acceptance have been received from eighteen of them, Beacham stated.

The ASTRP, according to Hayes, is a military scholarship and includes transportation to a designated school, uniform, tuition, board, books and materials and medical care.

Classes will begin the first week in July. Other classes, to begin the first weeks of August and September, have enrollment deadlines of June 20 and August 31, respectively. The training includes two twelve-week terms.

Beall Says World Needs Sacrificing Spirit of Mothers

Favors Peace Based on Principles of Charity and Justice

The qualities which characterize a good mother are more desperately needed now than at any previous time in the history of the world, Rep. J. Glenn Beall said yesterday.

Rep. Beall was the principal speaker at a Mother's day program held at 4 p. m. yesterday by Cumberland Lodge No. 271, Loyal Order of Moose, in the Moose home. He addressed 350 members and guests who attended the special exercises.

"The sores of the world can be healed by the applications of the wondrous, mysterious, but never failing process of mother love," the speaker said. "The world needs to be humanized. The world needs to be imbued with the self-sacrificing nobility of motherhood."

Prizes Are Distributed

Paying tribute to the millions of mothers in the world whose sons have been killed or wounded in the present war, Rep. Beall said that their "silent suffering" demands a peace based upon principles of charity and justice, the destruction of tyranny and barbarism, and the liberation of motherhood from slavery.

A feature of the program was the presentation of prizes by Frank J. Davis, district deputy supreme governor and governor of the Cumberland lodge, to the youngest and oldest mothers present, mother of the most children, mother with the most children in the armed forces, and the mother with the most children living.

Those who received the prizes were, respectively, Mrs. Marion Sothe, Mrs. Concetta Lisanti, Mrs. Sothe Brown; Mrs. Clayton Eaton, Mrs. E. T. Combs and Mrs. Margaret Stichter, all of whom have three sons in the armed forces; and Mrs. L. Kerns.

Musical Program Given

Following a brief address of welcome before introducing Rep. Beall, after prizes were awarded to the eight mothers, a musical program was presented, including a duet by Mrs. Louis Boyer and Mrs. Dorothy Wagner, accompanied by Mrs. Helen Pettie; a cap dance by Mrs. Helen Pettie; and a song by Mrs. Helen Pettie, and three band numbers.
